STATEMENT OF FACTS

14. On or about December 23, 2013, at approximately 1:45 a.m., Plaintiff Lorito was at the premises of Plaintiff FoFo's D/B/A location known as The Emporium ("the venue"), located at 9 Railroad Avenue, Patchogue, New York, in his official capacities.

15. Upon information and belief, three sons of Officer Drzal were attending the venue that evening for leisure purposes.

16. Approximately fifteen minutes prior to Plaintiff Lorito arriving at the venue, Officer Drzal's three sons attacked other patrons inside the venue; a fight ensued and all three of Officer Drzal's sons were either ejected from the venue by security or left on their own volition.

17. Plaintiff Lorito witnessed Officer Drzal's sons outside the venue after they had been ejected; one of Officer Drzal's sons had stated he was on the phone with his father and that he was going to have the venue shut down. The second of Officer Drzal's sons attempted to regain access to the venue after having been ejected for attacking another patron; this son was being restrained by the third of Officer Drzal's sons.

18. Plaintiff Lorito spoke with his head of security, Timothy Sadowski, at the entrance of the bar to determine what had transpired. At that time, Plaintiff Lorito learned that these three individuals were Officer Drzal's sons and that they had been ejected after they attacked other patrons and started a fight.

19. Simultaneously, Officer Drzal's sons continually to scream expletives and exhibited belligerent behavior in front of the venue. Officer Drzal's sons also stated their father, Officer Gregg Drzal ("Officer Drzal"), was coming to the venue, that "you guys fucked with the wrong people" and that the police were going to shut the venue down.

20. Security officers present at the venue urged Officer Drzal's sons to leave the venue during this time; however, they did not leave.

21. Approximately fifteen to twenty minutes after Plaintiff Lorito observed Officer Drzal's three sons at the front of The Emporium, Officer Drzal approached the venue accompanied by another uniformed officer.

22. Plaintiff Lorito recognized Officer Drzal while he stood at the entrance of the venue. Plaintiff had interacted with Officer Drzal on prior occasions while Officer Drzal was on duty as a Suffolk County Police Officer.

23. Officer Drzal was in plain clothes on the night of the incident; however, while at the entrance to the venue, Officer Drzal identified himself as a police officer, demanded from security at the entrance that he speak to the owner of the venue and demanded immediate access to the facility.

24. Security at the entrance granted Officer Drzal immediate access to the venue based on his representation of being a Suffolk County Police Officer.

25. Upon gaining access to the venue, Officer Drzal immediately approached Plaintiff Lorito in or around the entrance to the building.

26. Officer Drzal screamed expletives at Plaintiff Lorito, called him a “piece of shit” and a “fucking prick” and grabbed Plaintiff Lorito by the shirt and neck; Officer Drzal wrapped two fingers around Plaintiff’s throat and began to squeeze Plaintiff’s throat, choking him.

27. Plaintiff Lorito removed Officer Drzal’s hand from his neck and raised his hands in the air. Plaintiff Lorito attempted to calm Officer Drzal down repeatedly but to no avail.

28. Plaintiff Lorito asked Officer Drzal to move to the side out of the doorway and walkway.

29. Officer Drzal followed Plaintiff Lorito and before Plaintiff Lorito could attempt to speak to Officer Drzal again, Officer Drzal attacked Plaintiff, punching him in the left eye.

30. Plaintiff grabbed his left eye and hunched over in pain while Officer Drzal continued to scream at him, calling him a “faggot” and a “bitch,” telling Plaintiff he was not through beating him yet.

31. Officer Drzal then grabbed a metal barricade, which Plaintiff had used to steady himself after Officer Drzal’s initial blow to Plaintiff Lorito’s head, and yanked the barricade upward, striking Plaintiff in the head and face with the barricade.

32. Plaintiff Lorito was stood up by the blow to his head and face, temporarily dazed.

33. Plaintiff escaped Officer Drzal’s attack through a separate entrance that one of the other security guards had opened. Officer Drzal continued to scream at Plaintiff, calling him a “fucking bitch” and stating that he was shutting the venue down.

34. Plaintiff then called 9-1-1 from his cell phone and told the operator he had been assaulted by a local police officer, that he was the owner of The Emporium, that he felt like he was in danger and that he did not feel comfortable with the same precinct responding to the call.

35. After Plaintiff Lorito escaped Officer Drzal’s attack, and about three minutes after Officer Drzal initiated his attack, Sergeant Voight (“Voight”) and Lieutenant Mangolio (“Mangolio”), both of the 5th Precinct, arrived on scene.

36. Voight summoned Plaintiff and his manager Matt Dill (“Dill”) out of the building. Voight also directed the Disc Jockey to stop playing music, have the lights in the venue turned on, and mandated that the venue empty out.

37. The Emporium was effectively shut down and all customers were evacuated into the street.

38. As Plaintiff exited the building per Voight’s mandate, Plaintiff Lorito heard the announcement over the speakers that the police were closing the venue and that everyone had to leave immediately.

39. When Plaintiff exited the venue, he observed that approximately 16 other uniformed Suffolk County Police officers and emergency service personnel had arrived on the scene.

40. Voight instructed Plaintiff and Dill to stand in front of a police car parked directly outside the establishment as the 16 uniformed Suffolk County Police officers lined up in front of the venue. Voight mandated that Plaintiff not to move from the spot in front of the car until further notice.

41. Voight acted brashly and abrasively, threatening Plaintiff stating he “had enough of this place” and admonished him not to fuck with the Suffolk County Police Department.

42. Voight then asked one of Officer Drzal’s sons to point out if either Plaintiff Lorito or Dill were involved in the altercation inside the venue. Dill was pointed out, immediately arrested and taken into custody.

43. Plaintiff then informed Voight and Mangolio that he had called the police because of Officer Drzal’s assault and that he had the entire occurrence between Officer Drzal and himself on video.

44. At Voight’s and Mangolio’s direction, Plaintiff escorted Voight and Mangolio into the facility and showed them the security footage. Voight and Mangolio also watched the cell phone video that had been taken by Plaintiff’s head of security Timothy Sadowski.

45. After viewing the footage, Voight’s demeanor had changed from brash and abrasive to apologetic; he also stated that he wished Officer Drzal had not taken the actions he had by himself.

46. Thereafter, Voight and Mangolio had Dill released from custody without filing any charges and asked Plaintiff to give a written statement.

47. Voight apologized to Plaintiff regarding how the incident had transpired, stated that he should not have closed the venue down and that he had been misinformed.

48. Voight then took a statement from Plaintiff Lorito regarding the incident.

49. Officers from the 6th Precinct responded to Plaintiff Lorito’s call regarding Officer Drzal’s assault approximately 45 minutes later. One officer stated he was with Internal Affairs.

50. These officers accessed Plaintiffs’ surveillance system and took a copy of the video that had captured Officer Drzal’s assault on Plaintiff Lorito.

51. As a result of Officer Drzal's assault, Plaintiff sustained injuries to his left eye and head.

52. Plaintiff was unable to see a doctor until after Christmas; he saw Dr. Urmaza at St. Lucy's Eye Care Center, located at 887 Church Street, Bohemia New York.

53. Dr. Urmaza diagnosed Plaintiff with a corneal abrasion and prescribed medication. He also diagnosed Plaintiff with impaired vision in the eye that was struck by Officer Drzal.

54. Plaintiff experienced and continues to experience difficulty in opening his eye, blurriness in vision, dryness, tingling and a sensation that he had particles in his eye.

55. Plaintiff also suffered emotional distress, mental anguish and anxiety as a result of Defendants' conduct.

56. Additionally, as a result of Defendants' conduct, Plaintiffs Lorito and Fofa's both sustained economic damages in the form of lost income, lost revenue, lost profits and lost benefits.
